

Halloween Anybody?

— Charles Kinghorn

Marilyn Lightstone, Linda Randal, and Rae McCulloch in the mystical rites of the Kappa Kappa sorority initiation scene in "Reviewer's Choice", the anthology of Red and White Reviews to be presented as part of Open House. Directed by Jon Anderson and Judy Tarlo, the show will take place at 8 pm Friday Oct. 23 and 2:30 and 8 pm Saturday, in Moyse Hall.

Heavy Schedule Planned In Open House Program

From 2 pm Friday, October 23 to 8 pm Saturday, October 24 McGill University will open its doors to students, graduates, high school students, parents and friends for its third Open House.

This week-end is more than just an "Open House". It also includes an athletic week-end and a graduates' home coming week-end, as well as providing an opportunity for social and cultural events.

SPORTS ATTRACTIONS

On Saturday afternoon the powerful McGill Redmen will battle the Western Mustangs. In addition to McGill students at the game, there will be several thousand high school students, and countless graduates.

Friday night, will feature a different type of athletics. At 8 o'clock in the Currie Gym the "minor" major athletes at McGill take the spotlight. For close to two hours skills in wrestling, boxing, judo, squash, fencing, swimming and others like these will be exhibited for the benefits of visitors. This Athletics Night will also help freshmen in choosing some of the sports they can participate in order to obtain the required athletic credits.

HOME COMING

Graduates' Home Coming Week-end coincides with Open House. Many graduate classes in Commerce, Arts & Science and Engineering will return to McGill to meet each other again and see how the campus has changed; the new buildings and the new facilities. These graduates will be able to visit the numerous exhibits in the Science and Engineering buildings where apparatus acquired since they have left McGill will be displayed.

They will at the same time be able to see how McGill has advanced in the past few years in the research field in medicine, geography and geology.

DANCE AFTER

The social scene will be climaxed by the Meet McGill Ball,

Saturday night at 9 pm in the Gym. Continuous music will be provided by Eddie Alexander's 14-piece band and a swinging dixieland group. Admission is $2.00 per couple.

The dance has been planned as a composite Graduate Homecoming, Freshmen Reception and Football affair. The dance committee expects a generous turnout for the event.

Student guides for this event are still needed. All interested may apply today in the Salon on the third floor of the Union.

Double Clinics Keep Late Hours More Doolb, Less Delay Planned

The Blood Donor Clinic is innovating a late clinic this year. On Wednesday, October 28, the clinic will remain open until 8 pm for the benefit of those students who do not have a chance to come down during the day.

Also new this year is the double clinic, which will be simplified by two registration desks. There will be twice the number of beds as have been available in past years; this will insure little or no delay when students come to give blood.

BROADCASTS PLANNED

This Saturday morning the chairman of the drive, Norman May, will be interviewed over radio station CJAD at 8:20 am. The same station will be broadcasting the statistics on the drive every morning during the week of the clinic.

Appointments for blood donors can be made at the following places on the campus.

$160,000 Budget Passed By SEC

The passage of a Students' Society budget of some $160,000, numerous appointments, and the approval of a radio programme to originate from the-McGill Union topped the agenda of a marathon SEC meeting which lasted until the wee small hours yesterday morning.

An overall budget contemplating $159,115.54 in expenditures and revenues of $149,479.17 was approved by the end of the seven hour meeting. This means that the Students' Society will experience a deficit of $9,636.37, as compared with the deficit of some $5,000 incurred last year.

DEFICITS REDUCED

In approving budgets the Council continued its policy of making social functions pay for themselves. Organizations submitting budgets which contemplated deficits on social functions had their proposed deficits cut out entirely or drastically reduced. Notable among these were the Undergraduate Societies and the National Clubs.

Of the Undergraduate Societies, only the EUS and the CUS contemplated an excess of revenue over expenditures. The ASUS had proposed a deficit of almost $600 but Council put off decision pending a thorough investigation of the budget by the Finance Committee. The LUS, which had requested a deficit of over $1100, was granted only $275 with the proviso that this sum be used to underwrite the Law Journal and no social functions. The Theological Undergraduates Society was allowed a deficit of $250.

PENILESS

Cut off without a cent were the Graduate Nurses when it was discovered that two revenue items, a grant from the Women's Union and the ticket sales to the graduation dinner had been omitted. These will allow them to break even.

Other Undergraduate Society budgets met with similar treatment.

In all cases deficits were cut down or reduced in order to obliterate Students' Society subsidization of social events.

National clubs also were given similar treatment.

APPOINTMENTS

In the realm of appointments Gerald Postelnik, B.C.L. 2, was named Chairman of the Combined Charities, and Peter Annand was confirmed as President of the Radio Workshop. Morty Zuckerman and Norman May, both law students with previous studies in Economics and Political Science, were named to represent McGill at the Student Conference on National Affairs being held at the Texas A & M. Paul Noble and David Schatia will attend SCUSA, a conference on U.S. affairs, at Westpoint. Named as delegates to a University of Vermont conference on "Changing Values in College" were Arthur Dalfen, Marika Salamis, and Andrew Billingsley.

Starting Friday a radio programme will originate from the McGill Union. Called Spinnerama, it is a regular feature on CJAD from 5 to 6 pm. It will be heard every Friday from the Union, but Council has approved it on a temporary basis only.

Other SEC business included the approval of a new schedule of poster press printing rates, votes of thanks to the organizers of the Rooms Registry, to Mr. Al Tunis of the Graduates Society who put on a luncheon in honour of Soviet Student Vice-President Igor Biriukov at short notice, and a vote of congratulations to Roy Heenan who was elected International Affairs Vice-President of NRCUS.

Three New CUS Class Presidents; One Re-elected

Commerce students turned out yesterday to elect their class presidents for the coming year. The balloting which took place from 9 to 4 saw four new members elected to the Commerce Undergraduate Society.

Jim Hughes, electoral returning officer, announced the successful candidates as: Derek Evelyn, 4th year; Richard Wise, third year; Martin Wright, first year; all of whom are making their debut on the administrative scene; and Steve Kisber, second year, who was re-elected to the position.

The purpose of these officers is to serve as a link between the C.U.S. and the members of their respective classes. They are responsible for attending the meetings of the C.U.S. and then reporting back on them to the people who elected them.

Commenting on the voting, Hughes said, "The turnout was moderate with approximately fifty per cent of the Faculty voting."

He also expressed the opinion that more advertising may have increased the number of voters and apologized for this oversight. Sass Khazzam, president of the C.U.S. was not available for comment.

Let's Be Show-Offs

For several months now the Open House committee has been working at full pitch organizing the triennial "Meet McGill" programme. Designed to show the general public just what McGill is and what it does, Open House will take place this Friday and Saturday. An estimated 50,000 people are expected to flood the McGill campus over the two day period, something which is causing headaches for the organisers. The problem is this: 50,000 people require upwards of 500 guides. These guides will be drawn from the student population but despite the fact that lectures have been cancelled from 1 pm Friday and on Saturday morning the number of volunteers has been far from overwhelming. Particularly needed are students with a basic grounding in French, since many French Canadians are expected to take advantage of Open House. In addition, students with only an English speaking ability are needed to swell the ranks of those who have already signed up.

"Meet McGill '59" is a tremendous undertaking. Its success depends on your help. The University has cancelled your lectures in order to facilitate the Open House proceedings. A few hours as a guide will not spoil your weekend; they will merely balance out with the time saved due to cancelled lectures.

Besides, Open House provides a tremendous opportunity for the students themselves to see the interesting but unfamiliar parts of the University. When coming to see the displays offered by other faculties and groups, why not devote some time to showing people around the part of McGill you know best?

The Good Old Days

The other night we were discussing "the good old days" with a group of friends. Someone mentioned how much times have changed and to prove his point requested to see our Daily files from 1911-12, the first year of publication. So we pulled out the now yellowing bound copy of volume one. Much to everyone's surprise it's still very much like the "good old days" here at McGill.

For instance, the following examples:

1. In 1911 McGill students were debating the question of whether Latin should be removed from the pre-requisites for an Arts degree.

2. Advertising was a problem with the McGill Daily — there was so much, in fact, that a full two-thirds of page one was regularly filled with ads.

3. A "new university campus to be magnificent asset to student activities" was headlined in the Daily. The article concluded, however, "The funds for erection (of the new campus facilities) will all have to come from some outside source". Results of the Campaign Fund in 1911 were to be used to pay of university debt.

4. McGill University lost the race for the Intercollegiate football championship.

In certain respects, however, times have changed:

1. January 27, 1912 — The provincial government announced increased aid to the universities. Quoting the budget speech, the Daily said, "Referring to the Universities of Laval and McGill he (the Provincial Treasurer) commented on the great services they had rendered to the state... in the past they (the universities) had been mainly dependent on private munificence. Now, however, the time had come when a united public opinion demanded that the state should aid them more in their great and good work, and accordingly the government had decided to increase considerably provincial grants".

2. Or, consider the hockey scene. After a six game winning streak the Red and White dropped one game, then came back to outscore their opponents in the next two, winning the Intercollegiate Championship. Other championships garnered by the Redmen that year were basketball, track, swimming, and water polo, giving McGill five-championships out of a possible ten.

Any one for the "good old days"?

Letters to the Editor

Congrats For Uncovering Facts

Sir:

I apologize for not having written earlier. Your editorial concerning fraternities this year was excellent; it showed many facts as they are, including the situation that such notorious segregation, both by wealth, race and social background exists and flourishes at this university.

It was also pointed out, I believe, that no person of true integrity could cast his lot in with them by joining them "because they're not so bad"; for the struggle exists today, as always, not as individuals against other individuals (not as a Russian against a Canadian), but exists rather in ideologies.

May I once again commend this effort in the hope that it will be strengthened. Thank you for your time and attention.

Point of Editorial Missed by Many

Sir,

The subject of segregation has always been a sore point in the minds of many of us, and any comment that is made on it is usually blown up beyond proportion. Such has happened on this campus, and many students commenting on the recent editorial in the Daily have made the mistake of being too specific.

The editorial, and the policy of the Daily, was to rap segregation as a whole, using one basic incident as a stepping stone to the more serious problem. Unfortunately too many people read only the first part of the editorial, decided that this was a blow up on one specific incident, and proceeded to comment on this basis.

Such is the case when several prominent fraternity members were canvassed last Friday night on CFCF. Unfortunately they commented on the situation as it applied to them, although some of them were in a better position to see the overall topic than many average students.

Last Sunday, on "Fighting Words", several prominent Canadian personages, including Irving Layton, Rabbi Fineberg of Toronto, Dr. Grant from the Maritimes and Dr. Blotz debated the question, "Should an individual try to join a group which doesn't want him?" The discussion eventually swung around to the rights and wrongs of segregation. Although specific references were made to special cases, namely the Bunch-tennis-club incident, discussion was kept on an extremely general level.

Two thought-provoking ideas came out of this programme. Rabbi Fineberg, expressing probably a religious opinion, felt that "segregation is immoral". Dr. Grant stated that "No democracy, especially a social democracy, can exist if there are prejudices and segregation".

McGill is a University, whose main responsibility is the education of the citizens of tomorrow. Fortunately it has on its campus a great number of students who come from outside Canada and the States who come here because this country is presumably a democracy.

Is this the way they should be first introduced to Canada, with battles raging pro and con about a topic that they are probably very sensitive about?

And if this battle must be waged, why should it be directed against specific university elements like the IFC and the Panhellenic Council? After all, everybody is involved, and no one person or group can be blamed. This is something that affects each and every one of us, and much more thought should be given before remarks or comments are made that probably will hurt a great many people.

What Happened To Polio Shots?

Sirs,

Last year, many students here at McGill took polio shots. There were two clinics and we were told that the third "booster" injection will be given sometime in April.

Are we or are we not going to get our third vaccine shot, and when

Round Table Meeting Held By Women's Union

The Women's Union round table meeting took place yesterday afternoon. The meeting, which is a semi-annual affair, was attended by an outer executive composed of representatives of the various faculties and of the Students' Society.

The purpose of the event is to sum up the activities of the Women's Union and to receive a cross-section of campus ideas for the future. The representatives at this particular meeting discussed the calendar of events until Christmas.

It was reported that the book exchange, held recently in the basement of the Union, made over $2,000. An announcement as to where and when book donors can pick up their money will appear shortly in the Daily.

During the course of the meeting, the representatives decided to hold a card party in the aid of the scholarship fund. The Students' Society representative stated that there was a need for more girls at the dance classes which are offered on Tuesday nights.

Other matters discussed, were the bone china display which the Women's Union is planning and the publications planned by the Union this year. The meeting closed with a consideration of volunteer hospital work and a discussion on Underprivileged Children's Day.

Commerce Grad Talks On Trade

Charles Edgar Butterworth, a graduate of McGill University, now in the Foreign Trade Service, will visit the university this Thursday and Friday to talk to students interested in his occupation.

Mr. Butterworth will address these students at 1 pm on Thursday in the Walter M. Stewart Room of the Union. He will also speak to certain classes during lecture hours. Mr. Butterworth will be available to any individuals seeking further information in the Council Room of the Arts Building from 2 to 4 pm on Thursday and in the Placement Office, 3574 University St., from 9:30 am on Friday. Appointments are not necessary.

Mr. Butterworth interrupted his education to serve in World War II during which he won the Distinguished Service Cross. Returning to McGill, he graduated in Commerce in 1948, after which he immediately entered the Foreign Trade Service.

Female Advice Needed In Bone China Survey

A survey of Bone China design, sponsored by a leading maker will be held tomorrow from 9 to 5 pm. in the R.V.C. common Room. Similar design surveys are being conducted at Bryn Mawr College, Northwestern University, University of Michigan, the College of William and Mary and McMaster University.

Women students are asked to give their opinions concerning present china patterns and thus help determine future styles. For each girl who looks at the display of china and figurines, the company will give $1 to the Women's Union Scholarship Fund. In the past years over $150 has been contributed to this fund and it is hoped that the amount will be surpassed this year.

All third and fourth year girls are urged to come to the Common Room to inspect the display and fill out a questionnaire stating their preferences. This requires only a few minutes and affords an opportunity to see both the traditional and modern designs.

Most third and fourth year girls will be contacted in order to make appointments. However, those who are not called and any sophomores and freshmen who are interested are urged to come during the day.

Females Lacking At Dance Lessons

The Student's Union has arranged a series of dance lessons which are held every Tuesday from 7 to 9 pm in the Union's Walter M. Stewart room.

Initial publicity of these S.E.C. lessons drew applications from over a hundred interested students. Unfortunately there is a majority of boys enrolled and more of the fair sex are required to balance things off.

The classes, which begin Tuesday, October 27 and continue for eight weeks, will be taught by Miss Mildred Barry, a well known instructor.

The cost for the sixteen hours of instruction has been set at $10. Anybody interested, especially girls can obtain application forms at the S.E.C. box office at the Union.

Symphonic Band Begins

The Symphonic Band has begun another season of informal musical expression. However, many more musicians are needed if this is to be a successful year.

The Symphonic Band, (to be distinguished from the Redmen Band), under the direction of Morley Calvert is the only campus-wide instrumental music group specializing in light concert band music. Its purpose is to provide an opportunity for musical expression to students of all faculties who play brass, woodwind or percussion instruments.

All types of music are played, from the light scores of the Broadway shows to the more serious symphonies arranged for band.

The Band will perform at three or more concerts this year and is contemplating a trip to Ottawa. Practices take place once each week and all instruments except trumpets, saxophones and clarinets will be supplied if necessary. Anyone who plays a wind or percussion instrument is invited to come to the Union Ballroom tonight at 5 pm.

What Is DOOLB?

the bull pen

by PHIL SINGER

We have all heard of college football, whether it is American or Canadian. Most of us know that some college games are played before an audience of many thousands of wildly screaming followers. There are two requisites that must be satisfied before the above conditions are reached. The stadium in which the game is played must be large enough to accommodate the thousands (about 80 thousand or more). Secondly, the huge spectator crowd must be there. Here at O'McGill the situation is vastly different.

Our stadium is incapable of holding the number of fans mentioned above. But if we compare the size of the student body here to the ones whose ball teams draw 100,000 we can readily see that McGill Stadium is comparatively large. Then the scene here is not different because of the size of our stadium. Rather, the difference is due to the small number of loyal supporters.

SMALL FANDOM, WHY?

We were trying to figure out why only a small percentage of the students turn out to watch the Redmen perform. I found this to be a real puzzle. The first thing we considered was studies, but could not see why this was the reason. For, the football season takes place in the early part of the school year. Exams are not yet upon us; neither are term papers. The material covered in lectures is small as compared to the total taken by the year's end. Surely then, we can ALL afford to turn out on a Saturday afternoon (or a Friday night) and cheer for our side. Most of us, even if we don't attend the game, do not use this time to study anyway.

Another consideration was the weather. From past experience, we have learned that the weather seldom is bad for McGill home games. What, then, is the factor responsible for the small number of fans? We cannot come up with an answer, but would be pleased to hear from anyone who can.

UNFAIR TO PLAYERS

It seems to us that the present situation is more than a little unfair to the players. It is true that they play the game because they enjoy it. But let us remember that while they are in uniform they are representing the Red and White. We also should represent McGill. Obviously though, we are all not athletes. Our job as representatives is to attend. This is a far easier task than that of the players. We have no long, hard practices. Our plays are just a few cheers, most of which are learned by hearing them once. An yet, by all of us performing our job well, we can help the team bring glory to our Alma Mater.

Let us assume that the four teams in the Intercollegiate Football League are equal as far as ability is concerned. Then the odds are against the Red and White. For statistics have shown that the team with the most and loudest supporters has the best chance of winning, and Toronto, Western, and Queens always have a large number of fans to cheer them on.

The fact that McGill has not won a championship for such a long time should not prevent any of us from coming to the game. It should convince us that our presence is necessary.

Indians Ousted

The McGill Indians were eliminated from Junior QRFU play as a result of their 26-0 loss to the Rosemount Bombers. Tom and Bill Blakely each scored a TD while Payne and Fairholme picked up the other touchdowns to clinch second place for the Bombers. Gary Cullen stood out for the Indians.

It is really surprising to observe the results obtained by a group of spectators. There are two good examples that come to mind — one professional and one collegiate. The pro example concerns Montreal's own Alouettes. I guess most of you are familiar with the chant of "GO, GO, GO!" that the Als' fans holler. This usually comes about when the supporters want their team to gamble a little. But most football teams are content to play it safe. The Als used to be the same way, but now they play it the fans' way. Perhaps this is just a coincidence, but at any rate the results have been favourable.

The other example happened a while ago in an exhibition game between our Junior football squad and the Loyola Warriors. Starting the second half, we trailed by three touchdowns. We received the kickoff and after a few plays, we had narrowed the gap to two touchdowns. The next time we got the ball, another sustained drive was well underway when, the multitude of Loyola fans began yelling and screaming. Our drive was halted on the very next play. The fans continued in this manner and McGill did not score again. Perhaps, if enough McGill fans had been on hand to encourage our team, we might have pulled the game out of the fire.

ODDS AND ENDS

College football games are vastly different than professional ones. One must be an avid fan to really enjoy the pro games but this is not so at the college clashes. Even those who are not football followers will quickly become part of the excited and enthusiastic crowd... There are numerous clubs and societies at McGill. If all of these organizations, regardless of size, were to turn out en masse, the cheering section would be a major factor for the opposing team to contend with...

Soccer On Tap

Tonight the McGill Soccer squad will take on the Sir George Williams' crew at 7:30 pm on the Upper Field. John Raynor will not see action tonight as he is recovering from torn ankle ligaments suffered in the Toronto game.

Shetler Tops In Tennis Tourney

by HOWIE COHEN

Jim Shetler, a second year Law student, retained the Intramural tennis title he won last year by defeating Gordon Mohan in this year's final 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, and 6-4. Mohan, a native of Trinidad in the Faculty of Science, copped the title two years ago as a freshman.

The final match, played at the McGill Tennis Courts on Thursday afternoon, was a hard-fought affair with both boys displaying good tennis. They had to contend with cool 45 degree temperatures and a brisk wind. Nonetheless, Shetler and Mohan played well, coming up with good volleys and, at times, excellent placement shots. The main difference between Mohan and Shetler was the latter's superior backhand which he relied on to win many valuable points.

GOOD TURNOUT

The tournament attracted 88 male students from all faculties and all years. Matches were played at noon from September 29 until the final on Thursday of last week.

Competition was keen, especially in the last three rounds where the better players in the tournament faced each other, producing some very fine tennis. One of the better matches featured Shetler and Mohd Leghari, a science student from Pakistan. After dropping the first set, Leghari fought back gamely to take the next one from the ultimate winner. However, in the third and final set, Leghari slipped and twisted his ankle, thus dropping the final set 6-2.

One of the glaring weaknesses of the Intramural Tournament was that the players were not seated. Therefore, some better players were knocked out of the tournament in early rounds, while other less qualified contestants advanced to later rounds. This flaw is inherent in the tournament itself, as organizers of the "draw" do not know the ability of the players entering the tournament and cannot seat them according to their tennis capabilities.

SEMI-FINALS

In the semi-finals, Shetler disposed of Lloyd Thompson 6-3, 6-8, and 6-3, while Mohan defeated Paul Brenciaglia 6-4, 4-6, and 11-9. Thompson, a perennial competitor in the tournament, put up a good fight before losing out to Shetler. In the other semi-final match, Mohan needed almost 3 hours to overcome Brenciaglia who hails from Rome, Italy. Brenciaglia was bothered by a blister on his racket hand and was tired from playing an earlier match prior to meeting Mohan. However, he never gave up and finally lost out to Mohan by the narrowest of margins.

All matches in the tournament were 'best of three' events except the final which was the 'best three out of five'.
